Child Sex Trafficking:

What Child-Serving Professionals Need to Know

Child sex trafficking is happening all across America – rural, urban and suburban, yet far too many parents and child-serving professionals don't know what to look for or how to help. This session will empower attendees with information on common vulnerabilities, indicators, and reporting procedures. This session provides critical information to child-serving professionals on the issue of child sex trafficking (CST) including: risk factors and indicators relating to CST, ability to identify potential trafficking victims, and how to engage in local prevention efforts.

Cyberbullying to Sextortion:

Current Online Trends and How to Fight Back

During this session, participants will learn about the data The National Center for Missing & Exploited Children® has collected about recent trends surrounding online exploitation of children such as cyberbullying, sextortion and sexting. Participants will learn to utilize free reporting resources such as the CyberTipline® for sexual exploitation cases and how to report missing children. They will also learn tools and appropriate methods of how to speak with parents and students about online and real world safety.

The Raising of America:

Early Childhood and the Future of Our Nation

The Raising of America is the groundbreaking documentary series which reframes the way Americans look at early child health and development. It illustrates how strong starts for all our kids lead not only to improved individual outcomes (better learning, earning, and mental and physical health), but also a healthier, safer, more prosperous and more equitable nation. The Raising of America situates families within the larger social ecology which structures opportunities for child development: resources, neighborhoods, providers, institutions, public policies and racial and economic arrangements. Join us in watching the video and participating in a Q & A session with expert panelists that will highlight success stories from our communities that show that change is possible.
